18 밑줄 친 this substance가 가리키는 것으로 가장 적절한 것은? [1점]

The world is dominated by this substance. It is a strange stuff. It is formless and transparent, and yet we long to be beside it. It has no taste, and yet we love the taste of it. And even though we know it is dangerous and kills tens of thousands of people every year, we can't wait to play in it. Even for those who have learned to live with the substance, it is often a murderous substance. Depending on its state, it can boil us or freeze us.

26. Victor Borge was one of Denmark's most popular pianists in the 1930s. Like so many European Jews, he fled from the Nazis to the United States in 1940. Even though he spoke very little English when he arrived, he soon began to win over American audiences with his _____ as well as his musical gift. He once played to a very small crowd at a theater in Flint, Michigan. The sight of so many empty seats might have dulled the spirits of an average performer. But not the energetic Borge. He looked out into the audience and said, "Flint must be an extremely wealthy town. I see that each of you bought two or three seats."

28. In ancient Hawaii, building a canoe was a specialized art supervised by a high priest. When the chief requested a canoe, the priest led a group of people deep into a mountain forest to select an appropriate tree. A tree might look tall, strong, and wide enough, but before a final decision was made, the priest waited for Lea, wife of the war god Ku, to approve the choice. Lea appeared as a native woodpecker, who walked over the tree's trunk and branches. If the bird paused and pecked at the tree, that indicated it was rotten, and the priest and his party would continue their search. But if the bird landed on the tree, inspected it, and flew away without pecking at it, it was _____.

There isn't a cheer team at my school, but even if there were one, I wouldn't join. Part of the reason is that when people think of cheerleaders, they think miniskirts and blonde hair—and I'm not that kind of girl. But the major reason is that I would have to be tossed in the air—and gravity doesn't stop for a cheer. Like every dangerous sport, cheerleading needs enforced safety regulations. It's not a circus. It's a kind of team sport. Like football or hockey, it should have rules. A sixteen-year-old girl doesn't deserve to have her life on the line just to impress peers.

The longer I use cloth diapers, the more convinced I am that disposables are only good for special circumstances. Out of curiosity, I calculated the cost of washing one load of diapers: the cost of hot water, electricity, and laundry soap. I found that it only cost one and a half dollars to wash a load of diapers. It doesn't take much time, too. I do not soak them or double rinse them. They turn out fine. Not one of my children has had a problem with rashes from cloth diapers.

Millions of people have a good amount of credit card debt. I was lucky enough to get the following tip from my parents who paid off all of their credit cards in less than one year with this strategy. You may not realize it, but you probably accumulate at least one hundred dollars in spare change every month. Use that change solely for the purpose of paying off credit cards. At the end of the month, send the credit card companies a check for the amount of the change you have collected in addition to your monthly payment. I consider flavor or taste as the key to all reading. Taste is selective and individual, like the taste for food. The best way of eating is, after all, eating what one likes, for then one is sure of his digestion. In reading as in eating, what is one man's meat may be another's poison. A teacher cannot force his pupils to like what he likes in reading, and a parent cannot expect his children to have the same tastes as himself. And if the reader has no taste for what he reads, all the time is wasted. There can be, therefore, no books that one absolutely must read.

In an attempt to combat workplace stress, scientists in the United States have developed a new form of escape: virtual holidays. You don't have to pack a suitcase, dig out your passport, and use your credit card. You can simply stay at your desk, put on specially designed eyeglasses, and use a joystick to move through your chosen city or landscape. An engineer of an automobile company received a complaint letter from (a) an ice cream lover. He said that his car was vanilla-allergic. If he bought vanilla ice cream, his car wouldn't start when he started back from the store. If he got any other kind of ice cream, the car started just fine. The engineer didn't believe what he was told, but went to check it out anyway.

(A)

However, (b) the logical man didn't believe that the car was allergic. He wrote down all sorts of data: time of day, type of gas uses, time to drive back and forth, etc. In a short time, he had a clue: it took less time to buy vanilla than any other flavor. Vanilla, being the most popular flavor, was in a separate case at the front of the store for quick pickup. All the other flavors were kept at the back of the store.

(B)

He drove to the ice cream store with (c) the unhappy man. They bought vanilla ice cream, and, sure enough, after they came back to the car, it wouldn't start. The engineer returned for three more days. The first day, they got chocolate. The car started. The second day, they got strawberry. The car started. The third day they ordered vanilla. The car failed to start. The car did seem to be allergic to vanilla as (d) his customer claimed.

(C)

Now, the question was why the car wouldn't start when it took less time. Once time became the problem, not vanilla, the engineer quickly came up with the answer. The car had a special problem with the engine. It wouldn't start when it was too hot. The problem was happening every day, but the extra time taken to get the other flavors allowed the engine to cool down enough to start. When (e) the car owner got vanilla, the engine was still too hot to start.

【49-50】 두 사람의 대립된 의견을 읽고, 물음에 답하십시오.

Person A Recently, the city decided to approve construction of a new central library. At present, we have a beautiful library downtown. It is true that the building is old, but it is in good harmony with our city. It is a cultural treasure in itself. We simply do not need a new larger library as the present size is large enough. The present library should be preserved; it would protect our cultural heritage and save a great deal of money. We want the past to be preserved both in our books and the building that keeps them.

Person B A new library needs to be built and the sooner, the better. The existing library is old, but not all old buildings are cultural treasures. It is small, inefficient, run-down, and out-of-date. Although preserving the existing library might save money in the short run, a new library would be more efficient, thus saving a great deal of money in the long run. The design for the new building is progressive and sends a message that we are advancing forward, not clinging to the past. As our population grows, so should our city's appearance and function.
