46. Comfortable living conditions include not only chemical and physical cleanliness, but also privacy, space, and quietness. Since these belong to needs deeply rooted in human nature, the demand for them will increase as we prosper. [49~50] 다음 글을 읽고 물음에 답하십시오.

(A)

Schools should not impose religion or 'indoctrinate' children. Children come from many different cultural, ethnic and religious backgrounds. This means that it is difficult to agree on which set of values to teach. Even if they could agree on values, they still wouldn't know how to teach ethics outside of a framework provided by religion. Schools should stick to academics, leaving moral education to the parents and the community.

* indoctrinate : 주입시키다.

(B)

American public schools neglected their role as moral educators. The high costs of this neglect have become unbearable. There are a lot of materialism and greed behind the public scandals. People try not to take responsibility for their actions. Employees often steal from their employers, and students cheat in their exams. The schools should go back to teaching the difference between right and wrong.
